

Electrology Temporary Permits

- Temporary permits may be requested if you wish to practice electrolysis prior to examination and/or licensure.
- Temporary permits are issued based upon meeting the eligibility requirements and completion of the application file.
- If you are denied licensure or if you fail the examination, the temporary permit is automatically revoked and you must cease practice immediately. Practicing on a revoked temporary permit can subject you to fines, probation and/or possible denial of licensure. The facility where you have been practicing and the facility owner are also subject to disciplinary action against their licenses by the Board of Medicine.
- Temporary permits may be withheld prior to the council's review, based upon the questions or problems that arise.
